Applications are now open for the KJHK Arts and Culture staff, a crew of students who are interested in reporting on news in and around campus. These students write articles for www.kjhk.org and help curate FM pieces for the weekly program Ad Astra. Application deadline is Nov. 30. Apply here.

Students are encouraged to apply to the 2017 IRTS Summer Fellowship Program for a chance to participate in a media industry internship in New York City that includes travel, accommodations and an allowance. Applications are due Dec. 1. Get the details.

KU Professionals for Inclusion and Social Justice invites presentation proposals from master's and doctoral graduate students that examine the ways in which different spaces and interactions between people and spaces create challenges and opportunities for inclusion, social justice, equity, and/or access, as they are broadly defined. Also welcome are submissions that use theory, research and/or performance to call for the creation of new spaces that facilitate these ideals. Deadline for submissions is Dec. 2. Get the details.

The Newhouse Graduate Newspaper Fellowship for Minorities is a highly competitive 18-month program that provides two generous awards each year to minority students who have majored in subjects other than journalism as undergraduates. It is supported by the Newhouse Foundation, a private foundation established by Samuel I. Newhouse. Deadline to apply is Jan. 15. Learn more here.

FASPE (Fellowships at Auschwitz for the Study of Professional Ethics) is now accepting applications for its 2017 Journalism program, a fully-funded, two-week summer program. Fellows visit Auschwitz and other sites in Germany and Poland where they consider how to apply the lessons of history to journalism's ethical challenges. Learn more here.
